

Leading a successful geography department

CPD Training Courses
from the Geographical Association

London Friday 11 May 2012

Leeds Friday 18 May 2012

Target audience

For secondary geography subject leaders, or those who aspire to such a role.

Overview

This course will explore how geography subject leaders can maximise the impact they have on colleagues and pupils. Drawing on best practice from successful geography departments nationally, delegates will be challenged to reflect upon what they are trying to achieve, critically assess the methods they employ and plan workable solutions to the issues faced in their individual schools.

Aims and outcomes

Delegates will:

- develop and shape their 'vision' for geography
- consider how to create a high-quality geography department
- become more confident in developing the profile of geography in a whole-school context
- discuss strategies to address particular issues in their individual schools.

Presenter

Justin Woolliscroft, GA Secondary Geography Quality Mark Consultant and PGCE Secondary Geography Tutor
