

Producing an 'affective map'

1. Sketch an area you know well.
2. Think of about 10 feelings. (A good starting point might be the six categories of feelings identified by Charles Darwin in 1872: anger; disgust; fear; enjoyment; surprise; and sadness.)
3. Create symbols for each feeling to make a key.
4. Annotate the map with the symbols.